SUBURBAN TRIBE™

TOO MANY NOTES

The Office meets The Twilight Zone in SUBURBAN TRIBE, a wickedly funny take on life, love and the American advertising industry.

Alan Woods is a disillusioned art director at Yesman & Puckerup, the number-one advertising firm in the number-sixteen city in the nation. Together with his friends and co-workers, Alan must deal with toxic bosses and blinkered clients, all while juggling the very un-corporate challenges of international espionage, a super-intelligent cat and one belligerent leprechaun.

John Lee's SUBURBAN TRIBE: TOO MANY NOTES collects the latest adventures of Alan, Tiffany, Carol, Dave and Caesar, along with 24 classic strips, plus commentary by the artist. By turns comical and poignant, action-filled and startling, SUBURBAN TRIBE now draws over 12,000 unique visitors weekly to its website since its debut in 2003.

"Once I started, I couldn't stop... Funny, witty, and downright scathing at times, with playful, eye-catching character designs, this strip is a must-read!"

— Sequential Tart

"I was like a kid with potato chips... I devoured all the Suburban Tribe I could get."

— T.J. Colligan, Fanboy Radio
